

The Austrian Aviation Psychology Association

The Austrian Aviation Psychology Association (AAPA) is a non-profit organization to promote and foster (continuing) education and training in the area of aviation psychology. The aim of the AAPA is the support of academic and scientific qualification of students and psychologists. The AAPA, in cooperation with the University of Graz, provides a range of educational events (e.g., workshops, seminars, summer schools) for students and professionals. The AAPA conducts supplementary tasks such as information and documentation, interaction and cooperation with international partners, and the support of scientific activities in the area of aviation psychology.

Aviation Psychology is concerned with behaviour, action, cognitive and emotional processes of humans in the environment of complex systems in aviation and space, including cross-cultural and individual differences. Aviation Psychology develops and applies empirically based methods and tools from scientific psychology especially the applied areas of work, organisational, personnel, diagnostic, health, and clinical psychology. Aviation Psychologists are responsible for

- Selection, training and licensing
- Optimisation of working conditions and system development- reduction of safety risks
- Accident and incident investigation
- Crisis intervention and clinical psychological intervention
- Capacity and workload management
- Quality of team work and team resources.

Contact:

Office

Austrian Aviation Psychology
Association
(Verein zur Förderung der Österreichischen Luftfahrtpsychologie)
Rettenbacherstrasse 11
8044 Graz, Austria

Chair

Univ.-Prof. Dr. K. Wolfgang Kallus
Department of Psychology
University of Graz
Universitätsplatz 2 / III
8010 Graz, Austria

Phone: +43 316 380 5129

Fax: +43 316 380 9807

Email: wolfgang.kallus@uni-graz.at

Declaration

I would like to become a member of the Austrian Aviation Psychology Association.

I agree with the association statutes, which can be found at www.aviation-psychology.at (in German language only), and I commit myself to pay the annual membership fees at a value of 50,00 € for professionals and 25,00 € for student members. Membership fees are due to be paid by the first of April of the current calendar year to the following bank account:

Account name: Verein zur Förderung der Österreichischen Luftfahrtpsychologie

Bank name: Bank Austria Creditanstalt

Bank code number: 12000

Account number: 500-95459501

IBAN: AT631200050095459501

BIC: BKAUATWW

Purpose: Membership fee (year)

The membership includes the participation in the biennial general assembly.

To resign from the AAPA is possible at any time and without indication of reasons and requires a formless written statement sent to Univ.-Prof. Dr. K. W. Kallus* by mail or e-mail and does not entail consequences. Paid membership fees for the current year cannot be refunded.

---

Signature and date

*Please send a printed version of the filled in application form by mail to Rettenbacherstr. 11, 8044 Graz or send the filled in Word document by E-mail to wolfgang.kallus@uni-graz.at.